

GUIDELINES ON THE FORMAT OF ARTICLES

Originals should be submitted in electronic format (DOC, DOCX, RTF, ODT).

The maximum recommended length for articles is 10,000 words, including footnotes and references. Articles that exceed this extension may be rejected before the double-blind review process.

Please remember: the file with the article should include the title, the abstract (which is also evaluated) in the original language, the summary with the different sections of the article, the article itself and the bibliography.

In order to ensure a blind review, the article should not include any details that may help identify the article's authorship.

Numbering of the sections

The numbering of the sections and the summary should follow the ISO 2145-1978 norm:

1 Numbering of divisions

1.1 The numbering of the sections according to the ISO 2145-1978 norm have to be in Arabic numerals only.

1.2 The main divisions are numbered continuously starting from 1.

1.3 Each main division (first level) can be divided further into subdivisions (second level), which are equally continuously numbered. This can be continued for further levels of subdivision.

1.4 A full stop is placed between numbers that designate subdivisions of different levels (1.1).

No full stop is placed after the number that designates the final subdivision.

In-text and footnote citations

For every in-text and footnote citation in your paper, there must be a corresponding entry in your reference list. In-text and footnote citations must include author's last name and the year of publication. For direct quotations, you must include the page number as well. If you want to quote a source without adding any additional information, the citation must be included in-text; however, if you want to add an explanation or a remark, then you can place it in a footnote. Examples:

(Gémar, 2015)

(Duarte et al., 2002: 11-12)

(Font, 2007: 33)

(Scott 2016a, 2016b)

(Hale, 2011; Wallace, 2015)

(Wallace & Monzó, 2019)

Bibliographical references

Authors must include a reference list at the end of the article, containing the works used to prepare the article or which are regarded as reference works on the article subject matter. Authors must use the American Psychological Association (APA) citation style. See examples below:
